

e-hallpass for Student Behavior Management

e-hallpass prevents hall pass abuse and misuse, keeping students accountable, in class and on-task

Students stay out of trouble when they're not wandering the halls. e-hallpass makes it easy to track any student's hall pass usage for the day, month, or year

"I would recommend this product because schools are constantly using passes that are being abused by the students. This system enables faculty, staff and administrators to see which students are frequent pass abusers or requesters, which will limit students in the hallways. Parents can also be notified that their student is abusing the pass system. There is a timer notification so that teachers can see when a student has abused their pass privilege."

— Florida high school teacher

"e-hallpass fosters safety and student accountability. As a private school, we value the fact that our rigorous curriculum demands that students are in class and working. e-hallpass helps us ensure this."

— Florida private school

Teachers can prohibit certain students from meeting each other and misbehaving in the halls*

Historical activity reporting facilitates communication between teachers to flag hall pass outliers who have been known to abuse pass requests

"This program can keep groups of students from meeting each other in the hallways. The timer notification that shows the teacher how long it took for a student to reach them solves the problem of students taking too long in the hallways or going somewhere they shouldn't be."

— Florida high school teacher

"This program tracks students' movements outside the classroom and can be programmed to bar certain students from being out of the classroom at the same time. It makes students accountable."

e-hallpass facilitates proactive communication before intervention is necessary

Insights gathered from the data reported on hall pass usage can help to identify potentially troubling trends in student behavior, such as hall pass misuse/abuse, violence, vandalism, skipping class, etc.

"This product has really helped us with keeping track of students. We have had great support!"

— Pennsylvania middle school principal

"Student accountability is an improvement upon the paper passes still in use in many schools."

— Florida elementary school teacher

"If students know they're being monitored they may change their behavior patterns, and that could decrease the amount of school violence and problems in the halls."

— Florida high school teacher

"e-hallpass allows teachers to track student movement across the campus. This is extremely important due to security and safety measures that arise."

— Florida middle school teacher

Timers, alerts & notifications

Notifications tell teachers how long it takes a student to reach a destination so that the receiving teacher can have a conversation with the student if necessary

"This system dramatically improves student security and accountability — without any extra work for the teacher."

— Pennsylvania middle school teacher

"This tool provides an electronic footprint that increases security and ease of mobility throughout the school that ensures students sign in at their designated destination."

— Florida middle school media specialist
